Description:

Located on a knoll on East Green Street is this two-part log house, partially encased with brick. The house is L-shaped with a two story, gable fronted section and an attached one story two bay section arranged perpendicular to the two story part against its west side. The front elevation of both parts has been cased with brick while the remainder has lapped wooden siding. The west section once had an exterior brick chimney which has been removed. Windows have single pane sash and the door, located in the west front bay of the two story section is covered with plywood.

The house is shown on the 1877 Atlas map of Funkstown and was owned by a Mrs. Frieze. This is one of the oldest houses on Green Street which is dominated by later dwellings of the 1940s-1960s period.
